

Jenny & Her New Friend

There is a black giant scorpion dragon who belongs to the selfish witch who lives in the dark valley of fear; the giant scorpion dragon is the witch's crew and slave.

One day in the beautiful jungle a little girl, whose name is Jenny, is playing with the small creatures, then she sees a giant black figure in the distance. Jenny goes toward it to see what it is, when she arrives there with her small feet, she touches the tail of the black giant creature. The creature turns back and roars at her but Jenny isn't scared at all, instead she moves up to his back and then his head, and starts cuddling his hair and head. Then he becomes calm and cleans the snot which comes from his nose. Jenny tells him:

“Oh you are sick and have got the worst cold, you need to have a rest so come with me my elegant dragon.”

Jenny chooses an excellent name for him and calls him John, because she loves the name John a lot. So she says:

“John, come home with me because I’d like to cook a delicious and nutritious soup for you. Come on John, come with me and don’t be lazy. Come on my buddy,” then John opens his big wings, and Jenny yells, “Oh my gosh your wings are so elegant and big! Wow, I’d have never thought that you have such powerful wings, where were you hiding them John?”

John indicates under his body, and Jenny jumps up and down because she has found a real dragon, and she tells him that he is the nicest dragon in this world. Then John picks her up from the ground and puts her slowly on his back, opens his wings, moves them and tells Jenny that she should take hold of him firmly. Jenny takes hold of his throat firmly but John tells her:

“Do not take my throat in this way, you are choking me, sweetie.”

Jenny apologizes and then she takes hold of his hair firmly. John tells her:

“Please take hold of my body firmly.”

Jenny takes hold of his body firmly at last, and he flies up into the sky quickly and Jenny just cries and laughs from on the John’s back.

After that, Jenny tells John that he should sit next to the red roofed house which has an apple garden. John comes down slowly and sits next to the apple garden, and Jenny climbs down from his back.

She goes and brings back a basket of apples for him and tells him:

“Eat them until the soup is ready and stay here, dear John.”

Then she goes to the kitchen, picks up what she needs for the tasty soup, and starts making a delicious soup for him. When her soup is on the stove, she goes to her room and picks up her blanket for John, then heads to the garden and throws the blanket slowly on top of John before she cuddles his hair head and kisses his forehead. Then she goes back into the kitchen, pours the soup into the bowl, and brings it outside for John. She awakens John slowly, and feeds him the soup.

Afterwards John feels better, and thinks that he really is better. He thanks Jenny for her kindness and intimacy, planning to leave, but Jenny asks him:

“Why you are in such a hurry? Why don’t you stay with me for a bit longer?”

“You don’t understand, my friend. I’m the crew and slave of a selfish witch in the dark valley of fear and I should be back soon. I really don’t like to make her angry, if she becomes angry then she punishes me badly,” John tells her.

Jenny tells him, “She has no permission to treat you like this! Why don’t you protect yourself? You have powerful and strong wings and don’t let her control you, my buddy.”

“But I can’t escape or fight with her, because she has one valuable thing that belongs to me and with it she can find me and punish me,” John replies sadly.

Jenny is surprised, and she ponders the situation for a few minutes before she says:

“Don’t tell me that you are the king’s son. Because I heard this news, when I was very young, that the king’s son was lost, and no one has had any news from him until now.”

John nods his head because he doesn’t recall anything after that.

Jenny tells him, “I have a great plan, and I want to come with you to the valley of fear.”

But John won’t accept her help and tells her:

“It is so dangerous for you to come there alone, without any supporters. You don’t know her, she is so selfish and if she sees you then she changes you into anything that she likes, so I prefer not to take you there. So, stay here, dear Jenny.”

He opens his wings and jumps into the sky. Once in the sky, he realizes that there is something holding his tail, when he looks at the end of his tail he sees Jenny.

John says, “Oh no, why didn’t you listen to what I said? Oh my gosh, I can’t turn back because we are near the valley... I would like to punish you because you’re not a good listener!”

He lands down next to the witch's cottage and hides Jenny underneath his wings. And he tells Jenny that she shouldn't speak with him while the witch is in the cottage, and Jenny nods her head that she understands what he says.

The selfish witch comes out of the cottage and she starts nagging, "Why are you late? And where were you? I want to punish you with my painful stick!"

Suddenly, Jenny lunges out of John wings, to prevent the witch from beating him. John's eyes shoot wide open and he doesn't know what he should say or do. Jenny stands in front of the witch steadily, and yells at her that she has no permission to beat John, and that she will never let her beat him again.

The witch becomes angry, and she points her stick at Jenny because she wants to change her into other things. Suddenly, John moves around and beats the selfish witch with his tail, then taking Jenny in his teeth and jumping to the sky. He opens his wings and flies towards a safe place.

When he arrives in a safe place, he puts Jenny down and starts yelling about why she never listens to him. Jenny becomes silent and just looks at him, walking to the right and left, and she lets him finish his speech. John paces backwards and forwards as he speaks with her frankly. When his speech is over, suddenly, Jenny comes in front of him, opens her arms and hugs John in her arms.

John asks her, “What you are doing?”

John isn't sure she is ok and wants her to stand behind him, but Jenny doesn't listen to his speech and, suddenly, she kisses him on the lips.

When Jenny opens her eyes, she sees a handsome boy, who looks at her, then John looks at himself and becomes shocked at what he is seeing.

“You are really handsome, and you are the most beautiful boy that I've ever seen, you are an incredibly amazing boy,” Jenny tells him.

John's cheeks turn red, blushing, and he doesn't know what he should tell Jenny. Instead, he goes in front of her and kisses her cheeks, then he hugs her firmly. John thanks her a thousand times then both of them take each other's hands and decide to go towards the king's palace.

Aura & Her Protectors

Once upon a time a young Elf lady dressed in white, whose name is Aura, walks under the green leaves and pink buds tunnel, singing the life and hope songs for the plants little souls. Her hidden protectors walk behind her and jump between the trees. One of them is a yellow spider whose name is Zander, he has a sharp sword carried on his back and is always ready for fighting. The other one is an orange squirrel and his name is Vendetta, he fights with his spears, that he makes from tree branches at the moment of fighting by using his sharp teeth.

One day, when Aura walks toward the jungle and crosses under the green and pink tunnel of leaves and flowers, she feels that a sneaky creature is following her staring at her. She feels the cold weather, and recognizes a giant dark vulture with dark brown red eyes that comes toward her, and all the flowers are faded by his claws. She is scared of him and she yells loudly so that all of the trees and flowers hear her voice.

Then Zander jumps down from the tree and comes to help her, he takes his sword from his back and fastens it on his front and then he tells princess to escape from there and not look back.

The Elf princess starts running with all of her strength. On the way Vendetta appears, and tells Aura to sit on his back because he wants to find and put her in a safe place. He finds a small hole in a tree trunk, puts her there and warns her not to come out from there until they came back.

Aura goes to the tree trunk, sits on a small part of wood, and waits a long time for them but there is no news. She is confused and doesn't know what she should do, then she feels exhausted and so sleeps in the inside of the tree trunk.

When she wakes, she feels cold and realizes that all of the tree trunk is frozen. She is scared a lot by what she is seeing, then she goes out of the trunk and she can't see her protectors. Suddenly, a breathless body of Zander falls down from the top of the tree. All of his body is full of bloody ruptures and deep wounds, he wants to say something but Aura tells him to say nothing and wants him to keep his energy. Aura starts singing the remedial songs which her grandma taught her when she was a little girl and Aura sings the song and touches the wound. Then from the top of the tree the giant devil vulture comes and takes her with his claws and flies to the frozen land.

After that Vendetta comes and sees the breathless body of Zander and he is devastated from what he sees. He sits back on his knees, as tears come from his eyes. But then he sees that Zander moves a little bit and he is very glad that his pal is still alive. He goes next to him and helps him so that Zander can stand on his feet, and he tells Vendetta that the devil vulture took Princess when she sang the remedial song for him.

After that, they go to the Elf castle to inform the king and queen of the painful news.

In the frozen land, between the devil vulture's claws, Aura is unconscious because of the cold weather. A few minutes later, the vulture puts Aura down in front of the frozen Commander and he bows then vanishes. Aura opens her blue-green eyes and sees a scary and disgusting oval face with dark hollow pupils, deep circles under his eyes, gray red hair, and his teeth like dark and dirty swords. He is laughing loudly, he has a sense of pride that he could gain the beautiful Aura finally, because he loves her and he has wanted her since she was a little girl. Then he looks at Aura and tells her that he wants to get married to her immediately, then the dark hearted frozen Commander orders the frozen seagulls that they show Aura her room.

After that he orders all of his servants to prepare everything for the wedding ceremony that will be held two days later.

When two frozen seagulls open Aura's room, Aura thinks that she is at home because the room looks like an aquarium that is filled by green and fresh plants. Then she goes to the bed and lies down, a big, bright green leaf is above her, on seeing the leaf she starts singing and the seagulls enjoy her lovely voice. After that she starts walking around in the room and raises her head, the light of the sun comes in to the room and touches her face, then her tears come from her eyes and pour on to the ground. She wants to be back with her family and wants to breathe the fresh air, but she doesn't know what she can do. She opens the window and looks at the sky and she sees a small green butterfly. The butterfly comes to rest next to her and she touches its wings. When she does that, the green butterfly changes into a little boy! Aura is shocked and the little boy introduces himself to Aura and tells her that her father sent all of the green butterflies to all of the frozen lands to find her. So they are the guiders of the Elf armies, the little boy urges her:

“Don't worry princess, Elf armies are near and they will rescue you from here, I should get back and inform the others that I have found you.”

Then Aura closes the window, and becomes so happy that she will be free soon.

A little seagull comes and tells her that the elegant Commander wants her to come and join him for dinner, and the little seagull puts a special dress on the bed for her that she should put on for dinner time. She doesn't want to eat anything or see his scary face again. She tells the little seagull that she isn't hungry and she would prefer to sleep, but the little seagull tells her if she doesn't come with him for dinner time then the frozen Commander will punish him. After hearing that, she decides to put on the dress and go for dinner.

When she goes downstairs she is guided to the dining room and sees his disgusting face, she prefers not to look at him and just sits on the chair. The Commander starts making an important speech about the ceremony, which will be held for both of them tomorrow, after his speech he sings a romantic song for her but his voice is worse than a crow. When their dinner is over, the Commander wants her to dance with him and have a dance time but Aura rejects his request, tells him that she is so tired and wants to sleep, and that maybe later she will dance with him; so he accepts her excuse and tells her that he will dance with her very soon.

Aura doesn't care what he says, and she goes to her room. She senses a peace, just in this room which is filled with green and fresh plants, then she lies down on the bed and sings a beautiful lullaby for the alive green leaves, and after that she goes to sleep. At midnight, she feels that somebody knocks on the window and she gets up instantly, and sees Zander and Vendetta, her loyal protectors. She is so glad to see them again and she goes down onto the frozen ground with their help, but the giant devil vulture is always awake as he has no sleep time.

He flies toward them but at this time all of the Elf armies are there, so then the Elf soldiers shoot their arrows at him and one of the arrows hits his heart and he changes into a black dust and vanishes from the air. Then Vendetta and Zander rescue Aura from the servants of the frozen Commander, and her father comes down from his green grasshopper and hugs Aura firmly.

Zander and Vendetta come out of the frozen castle with the frozen Commander between them. Then Aura's father, the king of green land, comes in front of him and tells him that he isn't going to kill him, but he wants to give him to the desert king because he needs a strong and euphonious person like him to move heavy furniture and sing lovely lullabies for his sleeping time, and so he gifts the frozen Commander as a slave to the desert's army. Finally, the king comes back to his land with his pretty daughter.

Real Human

Hi all, this story is about me. My story teller wants to write about me but I like to tell my story from my own mouth, my name is Sophie. I'm searching to find the real human and the meaning of the real life. Before, when I was young, I talked with all people but now, I like to find a silent place to hide the real part of me there, and take in energy and calm myself. Now I can find a real place for taking energy I sometimes go there, to get energy from the place, and for its real human that makes me calm and listens to my speech without interrupting me.

Nowadays my parents ask me why I don't go out with them, I tell them it's because the modern people are not real human and their behaviors are like lizards, alligators and chameleons. Then they want to know why I want to hide myself from this modern world and I stick myself to the other world. I really don't care what they say, I just listen to their speech with one of my ears and then throw away their speech to the trash from my other ear. One day they call me to say that they want to go to a picnic with the other snobbish relatives, but I close my eyes so that they think I'm asleep. Unfortunately, my mother knows my personality well, and she comes and sits next to my bed and tells me,

“Dear Sophie, get up and put on your clothes. We want to go to the picnic with the relatives.”

I really don't want to go to the picnic with them. And don't care what my mother tells me. At last my father convinces me to go with them, on the road my little siblings call me 'Strange Sophie', but I don't argue with them because they have no brains in their heads to understand the real world, they merely rented their brains, and say nonsense.

When we arrive at the destination, all of the relatives say hi and ask us about our feelings. I just say that I'm fine, and everything is OK. Then the kids go to the cornfield and play there, but I sit on a trunk and watch everywhere. I really don't like to speak with anybody because their words and speech are always so repetitive, and I would prefer to hear something new. After that, my parents prepare sandwiches; I pick one of them then go back to the trunk and sit there, look at the sky and eat my sandwich. Then I look at the ground and see the funny insects, these insects almost look like the modern human.

Then, in the evening, we go back home. My siblings are so sad that the day is over and they have to come back home, but I am really happy that this boring day is finished and I can go back to the house and refresh my brain memory and delete the moments that I don't like to keep them in my mind. Then I go upstairs and go to my room. I take a deep breath, and jump onto my bed, then lay down and go to sleep without changing my clothes. I go to a deep sleep like that I pass away, and I just see the darkness of the coffin.

In the morning I wake up, go downstairs, take my bicycle, and ride to my restful place. I want to visit the real human, and I memorized some poems for them because I want to make them happy as they make me happy when I'm with them. I never carry flowers for them because they see the beauty of them and the freshness of them and they become sad, so I prefer to memorize some lovely poems. When I arrive there, I leave my bicycle and then go to the backyard and say hi to all of them, sit next to them and start singing the poems which I memorized for them, and then I start talking about the moments I had during the week. They are exactly the real human to me, I don't feel passing time when I'm with them, I really love them and stick them on my mind and never forget them.

Winter Sweet & Pansy

There are two different lands and they are far away from each other. Each of them are inside two different stones; one of them is stone wintery land, which is in the north, and the other one is in the south. The winter stone inner land is covered with winter sweet flowers and each of the flowers are houses where people live, and at the top of the winter sweet hill, there is a big and stony winter sweet palace where the king and queen's family live. They have a son, their son is shining like the snow flower and his heart is so sweet, and his son has two frozen wings and his name is Winter Sweet. In the other stone land, which is in the south, there is an inner land in the stone and the land is full of rainbow pansies and each of the pansy flowers are people's homes. And at the far end of this town, near a waterfall and river, there is a big and elegant palace, which is covered with white pansies and the aroma of them make the people unconscious. And in the palace, there is a king and queen and they have a pretty and adventurous daughter that has purple hair and her eyes shine like dew in the sunlight. Her name is Pansy because she looks like the pansy flowers, and her warm and energetic voice causes all the flowers near the palace to start dancing and change the color of their petals and unleash their aromatics to the environment.

Pansy always wants to be a normal and free girl like other girls in her land, so every night she lets herself down with a rope which she ties in her room, and goes to the waterfall which it is next to her house and begins speaking with the souls of her ancestor pansies, which are continuing their immortal lives in the waterfall and the river. She wants them to give her guidance as to what she should do with her life. After that she sees that a small yellow fish comes from the inner heart of the waterfall and comes to the surface of water. The bright yellow fish sends her one of its bubbles, there is a message in the bubble, when the message bubble touches Pansy's hand it opens and the message reads for Pansy that if she wants to find her future she should be brave and strong, and she shouldn't let others decide instead of her. After reading it, the message bubble vanishes from her hand. After that she goes back up the rope to her room, she closes her backpack and leaves a letter for her family saying that she wants to find her future by making her own choices. She looks at the room and kisses her desire owl and then goes down the rope and starts her journey.

When Pansy is walking the pathway of her land with her bare feet, the connection of her feet causes the earth heart pulses to reveal its energy to the above surface, and then the light energy of earth heart pulses becomes the beautiful shiny flower stars and goes up to the sky. When she approaches the end of the pathway her desire owl flies towards her, because it wants to be with her in this adventure. At the end of her land there is a huge, sharp and dangerous mountain, and above the mountain the silver shining touches her face. She starts going up the mountain and takes the help offered from her desire owl, and with great effort she can finish climbing. When she gets up to the top she sees a huge sky that she has never seen before and some silver dots shine there, then she walks through the large dark green grasses. She visits a moving lantern that moves around her and turns on her way; the lantern starts speaking with her and tells her that it has never seen any beautiful and elegant creature like you before, you are like a princess that comes from heaven, you are like the flower fairy and I think that you should be an important person in your land.” Pansy thanks her by singing a nice song for it and the shiny lantern thanks Pansy for singing. Pansy asks it what it is in the sky and the shiny lantern responds that “we call it moon and he comes to the sky at night when the sun is going to sleep, and the moon grants us the silver light in the dark night and he supports us in the dark frightened place.” Pansy is surprised because she has never heard anything about them before and so after that the lantern explains a little story for her.

Shiny lantern tells her that the moon is from the winter land of sky and a sun is from a warm land of sky and they are lovers and beloved of each other. They are the king and queen of the sky, when morning comes the queen of warm sky land comes up and the moon goes down, and at the night moon comes up and the sun goes down. They love each other and they cause that happy and warm relationship in this huge universe, and without them life is nothing because they are the king and queen of this life and they are the creature's hope. Pansy enjoyed hearing this lovely story and she thanks shiny lantern a lot for telling her this beautiful story about the moon and sun and the love that is between them. Then the shiny lantern guides her in which way she should go to the north and after that it says goodbye to her and leaves her.

On the way, her desire owl moves above and front of her and shows her the north, then Pansy becomes thirsty and she goes next to a small pond near the road. When she sits down she sees a long thing come towards her and it has two shiny yellow eyes and a strange mouth without any teeth. When she drinks a bit of water and wants to leave the pond, she feels that something catches her skirt and doesn't allow her to move. Then she is very frightened and cries out loudly, her desire owl hears her voice and comes to help her. Her owl sees that a little worm catches her skirt and nothing more, Pansy looks at the worm and then looks at her owl and she is ashamed of her crying. The little worm just wants to say hello to the beautiful Pansy so he catches her skirt with his mouth and the worm says to her, "you are the most beautiful flower human that I've ever seen and your aroma makes me swoon and brings me back to the fun time

I had with my family in the past in the field of pansies.” The little worm asks her name and she tells him, “my name is Pansy from the inner stone land and I’m pleased to meet you dear worm.”

The little worm tells her that his friends call him Mr. Tiny because he is the tiniest worm in his land and he is also pleased to meet her on this special night in the moon shining near the pond. Mr. Tiny gives her a bit of miniature fish that he took from under the pond, Pansy looks at them and she isn’t eager to eat them but she doesn’t want to make him sad, so she accepts them and thanks him for his kindness. Mr. Tiny asks her where she wants to go and Pansy tells him that she wants to go to find her future in the north and she is sure that she can find her future. Then Mr. Tiny wishes her all the best and prays for her that she can be successful in finding what she wants from the depth of her heart. He also tells her that she should be strong and hopeful in the north because the north weather is so cold, and maybe she is tired of going her way and she should be clever and patient because that land is covered by the naughty and curious lilies that are frozen and “they always like to ask lots of questions about the south and about your adventure, so dear Pansy you should be aware of all this and I wish that you have a great trip to the north.” Then he says goodbye to her and leaves her to go back to his home, then Pansy brings up all the miniature fishes which Mr. Tiny gave her and gives them to her desire owl because her owl is so hungry. After a bit of a rest, she closes her backpack and starts walking to the north.

She sees that the color of the sky is becoming lighter and lighter, and the dark blue color is changing to the light blue color, and the king of the sky leaves his night throne and she sees the queen comes up slowly and sits on her morning throne. Then Pansy feels warm air touching her back and that makes her warm, this warm air is coming from the kind queen of sky that she grants her kindness to the land in this way. Pansy is walking slowly in the green grass road when she sees a black dot with red wings creature that looks like a tiny ball when she approaches it, it opens its wings and changes its place and goes up in the air. Pansy calls her, “excuse me is this the way I can get to the north?” and she doesn’t get any response from the black dot red ball, so she is confused at which way she should continue her walking. Then a striped black and yellow creature comes next to her and wants to sit on her head and then it realizes it is not a common pansy flower like the other pansies and this one can move and speak, so then he introduces himself to Pansy. He picks up his hat to be respectful and comes down from the sky and stands next to Pansy and tells her that he is sorry for his job because he thought that she is a flower like others, then Pansy tells him that it is not an important thing for excusing and he didn’t do anything wrong. Then Pansy asks him if this way is the right way to the north and he tells her, “Yes Mistress, this way is the only way to the north.” Then he sees that Pansy doesn't look good, so he goes to his home and brings a bowl of honey for her and she eats all of it and thanks him a lot for helping and giving her food, then the bee supports her for the remaining distance she has left in the south land. When they are approaching the end of the road the bee says goodbye and wishes her all the best.

Then Pansy feels that the air temperature is very low and she should put on warm clothes so she picks up her knitted flower jacket from her backpack and puts it on. Then she walks in the frozen road carefully because she doesn't want to slip and fall down when she walks in the road, then she hears a whispering voice that comes from her right side. When she moves her face to the right side she sees a man-shaped body with two frozen wings that calls her in a strange way, she looks at him and asks him, "Who are you?"

Then he tells her that, "The people of my land calls me Winter Sweet," and Pansy starts laughing about why they call him sweet. Pansy asks him where his land is, and he tells her, "my land is in the stone and we live there," and he offers to come with her in his land if she wants, he makes her feel sure that both of them can have a fun time in the frozen stone land, but Pansy is a bit confused and she doesn't know whether to accept his invitation or not. She looks above herself and sees her desire owl nod its head as a positive sign and so she accepts that she will go with him to the frozen stone land. Winter Sweet comes down from the air and closes his wings, then they start talking with each other about their lands and about themselves and the desire owl flies above them. They arrive at a place which is covered by the frozen lilies and they are so quiet, but when Pansy puts one of her feet onto their field she sees all the lily buds open and they are awakening from her foot's touch. They all start speaking and Pansy is surprised and confused, and she doesn't know to which one of them to respond then Winter Sweet looks at Pansy and tells her not to answer their questions, "because you can't convince them with your answers and they ask you more and more questions, so take my hand firmly as I want to fly above all of them." Pansy takes his hands firmly and she finds herself in the big frozen sky with the sweet white ice cream clouds. When they are up between the sweet and frozen ice creams then Winter Sweet asks Pansy, "Why have you decided to come to the north?" Pansy tells him that she wants to find her future in an unknown and strange place, because she likes to search and see new things and improve her experiences in all unpredictable situations, and Winter Sweet enjoys her explanation about what she has in her mind for her life.

Then Winter Sweet stops flying and comes down slowly. Both of them go to the inner of the winter stone and there it is a bit warmer than outside of the stone. The aromatic of winter sweet flowers scatters all over the environment and Pansy just likes to stay there for a while because the aromatic flowers are just so adorable and relaxing. Then both of them are walking towards the hill and Pansy is shocked from what she sees; the palace is really nice, with the winter sweet and the big glassy frozen butterflies which move around all of the palace and put their kids in each of the winter sweet flowers, and this makes them happy. Winter Sweet guides Pansy to the palace and she meets the king and queen of winter land who are covered by the aromatic winter sweet flowers. They greet her, and the queen worships Pansy's beauty and tells her that she has never seen a south person and tells her, "You are so pretty and all of us like to meet the south people and your family." Pansy thanks her a lot for the nice things she has said about her and the south people. After that two waiters and waitresses come and entertain Pansy for coming and then Pansy goes with Winter Sweet to the dancing and music salon. The music band start playing gentle and romantic music for them and Pansy and Winter Sweet start dancing with each other and spend the lovely evening with each other until the night comes, and then they go to the palace balcony and watch the glassy frozen butterflies that move around them and the dots of sweet lights pour from their wings and the view of the sweet light dots is so amazing for Pansy. After, Pansy goes to her room to sleep and Winter Sweet watches her until she goes to sleep, and he just looks at her purple hair which is like the sunset wind, and he likes her appearance a lot, and how she sleeps in a romantic way. Then he leaves her and closes the door slowly so as not to wake up her and he stretches on his bed but he can't sleep and he is just reviewing the best events that had happened that day, and then he finds himself in the morning on his room balcony, then he thinks that what he had had yesterday was just a sweet and short dream.

He runs to the guest room but Pansy isn't there, and he is a bit disappointed that maybe she has left because she is an adventurous girl and likes to explore new and strange things. But then he hears loud laughing from outside and flies towards the sound and he sees that Pansy is playing with the huge butterflies under the big flower tree. He joins her and they begin singing the love and life song with each other. The butterflies which move around the palace with the beautiful and awesome voice of Pansy change their rotation and go toward Pansy, and all of the butterflies move around her and one of the big ones takes her to the highest part of the sky stone and there she can sing her song for all the people who live in the inner of stone and all the people can enjoy her singing. After, Winter Sweet gathers her up in the sky and they move there like both of them are dancing in the sky stage and she sings for the audience who watch her on the stage. Then both of them go down and Winter Sweet embraces her in his arms and then kneels down and asks her to marry him and she accepts by singing a lovely romantic song for him, and then they hug each other. Winter Sweet goes to the palace to give this awesome news to his parents, but his parents want to talk with him in private. His
